Horrible Diseases.
y thousands of persons, both male and feures who are enduring out a miserable exist-he effects of secret indulgences, or from virus to the system. Look at their pallid, [illegible] gured faces and their broken-down constitu-alifying them for the happiness of marriage ment of life. In this horrid situation thou-until death closes the scene. Let parents, riends, attend to those who are suffering with horrible life-destroying maladies [illegible] that ed for and cured before it be too late. Send liately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has e disease his especial study for years, and who cure the most inveterate cases without mer-injurious drugs. It is important to those cted, or to those who are interested in the heir friends, to be careful of the many pre-re who infest all cities, publishing their skill ll diseases in a few days, imposing upon the ing the names of eminent physicians from other places. Be therefore careful and make y, or you may fall into the hands of those [illegible], the consequence of self-abuse. This , or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, with unerring certainty, the following train mptoms, unless combatted by scientific med-

, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under in in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness ins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, ffect, loss of confidence, diffidence in ap-rangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, to shun society, loss of memory, hectic
ples and various eruptions about the face, s, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night omania and frequently insanity. If relief be , should apply immediately, either in person and have a cure effected by his new and sci-of treating this disease, which never fails of ick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One llars to any person who will prove [illegible] hat he was cured of this complaint by either

HAYING AND HARVESTING TOOLS,
For sale by H. W. CORBETT & CO.

The Chicago Declaration Repeated.

In his annual message Mr. Andrew Johnson complacently assumes that the Congressional plan of reconstruction is a failure. He informs Congress that the people have pronounced against it in the elections. Mr. Johnson has that easy composition of mind which always leads him to conclude, no matter how elections go, that he is "endorsed." Last year when the Republicans swept the whole country on issues presented by Mr. Johnson himself, he claimed that the result was no decision against his policy. This year when the Democrats have obtained some partial successes on issues having little or no connection with national affairs, Mr. Johnson takes the result as a positive endorsement of his course, and informs Congress that its policy is a failure. This last assumption is about as ingenuous as Mr. Johnson's declarations usually are. What is the Congressional plan of reconstruction? It is embodied in the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, for which the country was carried last year as by a whirlwind. The principal features of the plan are the disfranchisement and exclusion from office of leading rebels, the guarantee of the national debt, the repudiation of all debts incurred in aid of the rebellion, and the guarantee of civil rights to all classes. This amendment embraces every object designed to be secured by the Congressional plan. Negro suffrage and the temporary military governments at the South are but instruments employed to attain th[illegible] [illegible]. Even if we concede the result of the elections to be a declaration against the use of these instruments, the result is by no means a declaration against the Congressional plan of reconstruction. The people have already pronounced for that plan in the most positive way, and, if necessary, will do it again and again. This amendment proposes objects which the people are determined to [illegible]; and while there may be a difference of opinion as to the method, there is none whatever as to the necessity of attaining the the objects in view. Last year an immense majority of the people decided that certain things ought to be done. This year, if there has been any question [illegible] with this subject before the people, that question merely related to the manner in which these proposed ends should be reached. But even this question was not fairly in issue before the people of any State. The contests of this year were almost wholly upon local questions. But if we should [illegible] Mr. Johnson and the Democratic party everything which they can claim to have gained, even this would be no confession of the failure of the Congressional plan. The most it would amount to would be that the people did not wish to employ the [illegible] proposed for securing the objects in view, and that they prefer [illegible] other way. Therefore Mr. Johnson's announcement that the Congressional plan is a failure is neither happy nor forcible. Coming, too, at a time when reconstruction is progressing most favorably, with every prospect of a [illegible] and successful [illegible], it reminds one of the [illegible] declaration that the war was a "failure," which was put forth by the Chicago Convention in 1864 when the rebellion was already on its last legs.

Gen'l Lovell H. Rousseau.

Some days ago this distinguished officer took command of this military department. We leave the self-appointed Court Journal the befitting task of Heralding in high-flown flunkeyism the every exit and advent of our military heroes. For this [illegible] Generals, like other mortals in power, are unavoidably subject to this kind of transparent adulation, and they must [illegible] it.

In the dark days of 1860-61, General Rousseau was among the first men in Kentucky to take a decided position on the side of the country. We remember with [illegible] his timely and fearless stand for the Union and against the rebellion. When the State of Kentucky, under the lead of ill-disguised secessionists, stood shivering and shifting on the anomalous and contradictory platform of "neutrality," Rousseau's two regiments of Kentucky Unionists, organized on Indiana soil, crossed the river and prevented Louisville from falling into the hands of the rebels under Buckner. But for this timely action, the pretended neutrality of Kentucky might have resulted, as many of the leaders intended, in making that State the breastwork and battle-field of the rebellion.

By way of introducing the General to our readers and to the people among whom he is to exercise the powers and duties of his high command, we copy the following brief notice of him from the American Cyclopædia:

Rousseau, Lovell Harrison, a Major General in the U. S. Army, born in Lincoln county, Ky., in 1820. He is of Huguenot descent, and his father was first cousin to President Harrison. He never went to school after he was ten years old. When he was thirteen his father died, leaving a widow and a large family of young children. Lovell obtained employment in macadamizing a turnpike road, and while he sat at his work breaking stone, he used to study French from a paper spread out before him. After awhile he removed to the vicinity of Louisville, studied law for a few months there, and for a few months more at Bloomfield, Ind., was admitted to the bar at the latter place in 1841, and in 1844-5 was a member of the Indiana Legislature. In 1846 he became Captain in the 2d Indiana volunteers for the Mexican war, and immediately after his return home was elected to the State Senate. He removed to Louisville, Ky., in 1849, before his term of office had expired, but his constituents would not allow him to resign. In 1860 he was elected to the Kentucky Senate. When the great war broke out he raised two regiments of Kentuckians, but in deference to the neutral sentiment then prevailing in that State, was obliged to encamp on the Indiana side of the Ohio river. When Buckner advanced toward Louisville in September, 1861, he crossed the river to protect that city. He was appointed Brigadier General of Volunteers Oct. 1, and attached to Gen. Buell's army of the Ohio, with which he participated in the battle of Shiloh. He was afterwards promoted to the command of a division in McCook's corps, at the head of which he took a principal share in the battle of Perryville, Oct. 8, 1862. In the same month he was nominated a Major-General.

THE ORIGINATORS OF THE "MAINE LAW."—The Copperheads are [illegible] the Republicans for enacting restraining and prohibitory laws touching the observance of Sunday and the sale of liquors. Such measures are characterized as tyrannical and as instruments of popular subjugation. Now it happens that the Democratic party has a record on this subject which is something different from its present professions. The first State act whereby the sale of intoxicating liquors was absolutely prohibited was passed in Maine while that State was under Democratic control, and was signed by a Democratic Governor. The most rigid Sunday law ever in force in the city of New York was approved by Fernando Wood, while Mayor of that city. The liquor law in Iowa, against which the Democracy ran a tilt in the late canvass, was enacted many years ago by a Democratic Legislature. The truth is, that party has dabbled in this business quite as much as the Republicans have ever done. And it should not be forgotten that it originated the "Maine Law," the source of all State legislation of a prohibitory nature.

The Election in New York.

[From the New York Tribune, Nov. 6th.]

With three fourths of the Republican journals published in our city either neutral in the contest or virtually telling their readers that it would be better for the Republican [illegible] to have the Republican ticket beaten this fall, we could hardly expect to hold our own city or State, but the defection is far greater than could with reason have been anticipated. Here, where the influence of our city journals is almost direct and [illegible], the practical adhesion to the wrong side of most of those read and [illegible] by the Republicans has cost the Republican State ticket at least ten thousand votes, and [illegible] our legislative candidates even in districts where they are decided Republican majorities. To let the election go by default, it was held and argued by the trimmers and camp-followers, would crush out what they are pleased to stigmatize as radicalism and [illegible] inevitable the nomination of General Grant for President. Such considerations and calculations have kept fifty thousand voters from the polls, and insured the overwhelming defeat of our State ticket.

The Canal frauds and [illegible] of the last two or three years have contributed to [illegible] in the interior. Democratic candidates who are notoriously [illegible] to the public as [illegible] holders, run just as well as any, and [illegible] in the vote yesterday for [illegible] in our [illegible]; but Republicans will not stand that sort of [illegible]. Hence our State officers whose terms expired this year, were refused a renomination [illegible] two or three of the less important were implicated in the scandalous Canal lettings and [illegible] of last year, and our late State Convention [illegible] strong and fit resolves against the [illegible] or support of jobbers or [illegible] for any [illegible] whatever. Yet [illegible] of tainted reputation succeeded, [illegible], in nominating themselves for Senate and Assembly, compelling bolts which damaged our State ticket, [illegible], which [illegible] it still more. Our temporary loss from this source may be [illegible] by thousands of votes.

We are beaten by Republicans this year, and the work of reconstruction thus gravely delayed, if not [illegible]. The [illegible] are virtually told by the State of New York—"Hold on! vote against Conventions wherever you are strong enough to defeat them; refuse to vote wherever you can thus hope to defeat and damage the process more than by voting; and you may yet resume control of [illegible], and trample the white and black Unionists under your feet through the [illegible] and virtual re-enslavement of the [illegible]." We look for more and more palpable and powerful resistance to reconstruction—to any [illegible] that blacks have rights which whites are bound to respect—from this hour on. [illegible] But Bull Run did not destroy the Union, nor did the Democratic victories in 1862 defeat the policy of emancipation. It may have been necessary to pile proof upon proof that [illegible] the [illegible] of the South nor the Democracy of the North will [illegible] to the loyal blacks any right which they can possibly withhold or take away. In view of the experiences of the last seven years, wherein our McClellans and Burnsides proved equally [illegible] with our Grants and Shermans to the [illegible] extirpation of the slave power [illegible] heart or hope, [illegible] that the reverses of the present, [illegible] with the triumphs of the past, will in the end [illegible] to the one great end of [illegible] this country, [illegible] Constitution [illegible] and have [illegible] or worse for his acts, but [illegible] and affirm the equal rights of all.

District of Alaska.

The following order has been issued by General Davis:

Headquarters Military District of Alaska,
New Archangel, [illegible] Ter., Oct. 29, 1867.
[General Orders, No. 1.]

I. For the information of all [illegible], it is hereby announced, that by [illegible] of the War Department, the Territory [illegible] recently acquired by the United States, has been formed into a Military District, and that by Special Orders, No. 154, [illegible] the Western Military Division of the Pacific, dated San Francisco, California, September 6th, 1867, assigns the undersigned to the command of the Military District as soon as the said territory shall be formally turned over to the United States.

II. The agents on the part of His Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, and His Excellency the President of the United States, appointed in accordance with article 4 of the treaty of [illegible] 30th, 1867, [illegible] to the United States all the [illegible] Government [illegible] and islands, having [illegible] the [illegible] Military Commander of the [illegible] transfer of said [illegible], and [illegible] to the United States, he hereby [illegible] the [illegible], and enters upon the discharge of his [illegible] by declaring the jurisdiction of the [illegible] over said territory and the [illegible] of the [illegible] by United States troops.

III. The Government of the United States having as yet made no provision for the [illegible] of civil authority in this Territory, it [illegible] the duty of the military authorities to give [illegible] to the inhabitants thereof and their property. With this object in view, it is announced that all laws of Congress of general application to all the other Territories of the United States will be enforced; and laws, rules and regulations heretofore in force for the government of the people of this Territory, will, until changed by the proper authority, continue in force, provided they do not conflict with the laws of Congress, nor the treaty by which this Territory was ceded.

IV. For the information of all residents of the Territory who desire to remain and become citizens of the United States, by availing themselves of the privileges of Article III of the Treaty above alluded to, it is hereby announced that they can signify their intention to do so, by registering their names and filing their declaration at the Adjutant General's office of this District.

V. The following named officers were announced as composing the staff: Brevet Lieutenant Colonel Geo. H. Weeks, Captain and Assistant Quartermaster, U. S. A., and Acting Com[illegible] of Subsistence; Captain A. B. Hoff, Surgeon, U. S. A.; Brevet Captain Samuel H. Krenzy, First Lieutenant Second Artillery, Aid-de-Camp and Acting Assistant Adjutant General. They will be respected and corresponded with accordingly.

(Signed) JEFF. C. DAVIS,
Major General Commanding District of Alaska.

THE ESSENCE OF REBELLION.—The following from the New York Herald's Richmond correspondence, shows the bitterness of feeling nourished by the rebel against the Government, and their mad purpose to provoke a war of races if possible:

The feeling, which before was friendly to the negro, is now one of bitter animosity, [illegible] with little pity. The whites have [illegible] desperate upon the result of the elections; strong measures, rigidly enforced, are to be adopted; war to the knife is resolved upon; [illegible] are to be employed no longer than their services can be dispensed with and a white substitute obtained. A movement is now on foot here, not among old fogies, but the energetic business men of this city, to bring here, at any expense, white labor, which will be immediately employed, or, if not, provided for until it is. This is to be done gradually, until no negroes are employed by whites. The cry is, "If devotion to [illegible], secret oath-bound associations and vagabonds, are the interest of negroes, let them commence by feeding and clothing them." Already, large numbers are discharged from work; employers preferring to cease operations rather than pay men whom they consider are laboring zealously to ruin their most vital interests.

Chaos is beginning. These two races cannot exist on terms of equality in the same country. It is foolish to believe it for an instant. Extermination of the one or the other is the inevitable result of the hatred inaugurated by the recent elections here.

The most stupendous price ever obtained for any book was for a copy of Boccaccio's [illegible] of 1471. At the beginning of this century the copy, then and for a long time afterwards considered to be unique, was in the possession of a London bookseller, and was purchased by the Duke of Roxburgh for 100 guineas. The other two copies are known now: one in the Ambrosial Library at Milan and the other in the Imperial Library at Paris. But the first wants one and the other three leaves. The edition is said to have been suppressed by Papal authority.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 4, 1867.

A Leaf from the History of Three Years Ago

The Herald informs its readers that when Mr. Lincoln brought forward his plan of reconstruction, the "Democracy" did not oppose it. That paper claims that this plan has been followed to the letter by Mr. Johnson, and that its party has supported it from its inchoation. "The Democracy," it says, "opposed many measures of Mr. Lincoln's administration, but this was not one of the measures which the Democracy opposed." Of course all Democrats who have intelligence enough to know anything, know that this assertion is wholly untrue. Certainly there is no Republican who is not aware of its falsity. There was no measure of Mr. Lincoln's administration which the Democratic party opposed with more vehemence or bitterness than his action in regard to reconstruction from the time he began the work to the day of his assassination. There was no other measure of his administration which drew upon him such a torrent of Copperhead abuse and malicious denunciation. Every person knows this to be so. And we take occasion to remind the editor of the Herald that he himself has a record on the subject which gives what Touchstone would call the "lie direct," to his assertion that his party did not oppose this measure of Mr. Lincoln's. In December, 1863, President Lincoln issued a proclamation offering amnesty and pardon to certain classes of rebels, and inviting loyal citizens, with the amnestied classes, to form new State governments, recognizing the authority of the United States and the freedom of the emancipated blacks. Louisiana and Arkansas soon began to move for new State governments, in conformity with the terms of this proclamation. To help the movement forward, Hahn was appointed Governor of Louisiana, and Murphy of Arkansas. These movements, the groundwork of all that Mr. Lincoln did in the way of reconstruction, were furiously assailed by the Democratic press and by every Democrat in Congress. At that time a paper was published in San Francisco, called the Press. This paper was an intense Democratic sheet, whose editor was one Beriah Brown. In its issue of March 1st, 1864, the Press had an article condemning Lincoln's plan of reconstruction in the strongest terms, and declaring that his object was not to restore the Union, but to secure his own re-election.

In its issue of March 8th the Press again refers to the subject, and became more explicit in its reasons. The President had written a letter to Gen. Steele, then commanding in Arkansas, informing him that many citizens of that State had petitioned that an election might be held to choose a Governor, and directing him to order such election to take place on the 28th of March, 1864. The Press printed this letter in its issue of March 8th, and "Beriah Brown, Editor" wrote and published a long leading article in connection with it. In this article it was declared that President Lincoln's action was "simply a naked and palpable [illegible] of power, an usurpation in direct conflict with the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of Arkansas." We are unwilling to [illegible] quote [illegible] this writer, "that the American people are so indifferent to the cause of free government—to their own rights, privileges and interests, as to bow their necks to the yoke of [illegible] aiming for them, and quietly [illegible] in [illegible] press [illegible] tions of [illegible]." On the 22d of March another [illegible] on the same subject was published in the Press [illegible] in similar terms what it "had" Lincoln's usurpations." On the 20th of April it declared that "Lincoln [illegible]" for sending a force to Florida to aid in the reconstruction of a loyal State government. These citations indicate the kind of support which the "Democracy" gave to the reconstruction policy of President Lincoln. "Beriah Brown, Editor," should remember that as the evil which men do often lives after them, so a Democratic record is a thing which is too [illegible] and monstrous ever to be effaced.

The extracts quoted from the Press fairly represent the spirit of the entire Democratic party toward the reconstruction measures of Mr. Lincoln. One of the charges most frequently repeated against Mr. Lincoln in the campaign of 1864 was that he was guilty of "usurpation" in the [illegible] of the Free State governments in the South. When Senators and Representatives from Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee [illegible] to Congress voted [illegible] against their admission. The loyal State governments of the South were continually [illegible], and threats of armed resistance were made by the Copperheads in every Northern State in case any attempt should be made to include the vote of the revived States in the electoral college. These are facts which have not [illegible] anybody's recollection. And yet a Democratic editor, in the face of these facts, and in the face of his own written declarations to the contrary, is shameless enough to say that his party did not oppose Mr. Lincoln's plan of reconstruction!

In view of all this, the question may be pertinently asked: If Johnson is carrying out the policy inaugurated by Lincoln, why did those who are now insisting that the measures of the two Presidents are identical, assail that policy when Lincoln proposed it, and become its champion within six months after Johnson succeeded to the Presidency? The answer is obvious. The Democratic party has not changed. But Johnson has changed. That party opposed the reconstruction [illegible] of President Lincoln because [illegible] have been to exclude rebels from power. [illegible] Johnson's reconstruction policy [illegible] successful, would be to throw the Government into the hands of the defeated [illegible] of the country. This is the key to the action of the Democratic party.

"THE SEPTENNIAL TREATY."—This treaty of which so much has been said in late dispatches from Europe, was an arrangement between France and Italy, signed in September 1864. It consisted of four articles in substance as follows:

1. Italy undertakes not to attack the present territory of the Pope, and even to prevent by force any attack proceeding from the exterior.
2. The French troops to be soon withdrawn, at latest within two years.
3. The Italian Government to make no protest against the organization of a Papal army, sufficient for protection and defense, provided that this force did not degenerate into a means of attack against the Italian Government.
4. Italy to assume a proportionate part of the debt of the former States of the Church.

The French troops had occupied Rome since 1849. The Pope fled from Rome in 1848, terrified by the republican spirit of Italy which was aroused by the French Revolution. He applied to France, after the election of Napoleon as President, to restore him to Rome and power. Napoleon succeeded in inducing the Assembly to authorize an expedition to Rome, nominally to restore order in the city, but really to restore the Pope. The French troops captured the city, June 30, 1849, and the Pope returned in 1850, where he has since retained his temporal sovereignty, supported by the French troops. According to the terms of the treaty between France and Italy, those troops were withdrawn prior to September last, when Garibaldi made another attempt against Rome. The French troops were immediately ordered back to quell the uprising. That accomplished, they have now [illegible] away from the city.

The message of Gov. Smith of Montana is published in the papers of that Territory. It states that the Territory covers an area of 172,880 square miles, and has a population of 45,000. The assessed value of property, exclusive of minerals, is between six and seven millions of dollars.

(DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.)

DATES TO DECEMBER 3.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Both houses of Congress had a short session. The respective presiding officers announced first session of fortieth adjournment, and immediately called the second session.

Corbett, of Oregon, introduced a bill providing for the issue of gold notes in place of legal tenders, to facilitate the resumption of specie payment.

Stewart introduced a bill to establish a National School of Mines.

In the House, Hooper introduced a bill to create the office of Surveyor General for Utah, and extend the homestead pre-emption law to that Territory.

The President's Message.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Chicago papers print the President's message in advance of its delivery. It is quite a lengthy document. A large portion is devoted to the review of the President's policy. It is principally statements of the views embodied in veto messages of various reconstruction bills. The President urges the repeal of all these measures, and a return to a practical application of the constitution and laws. Argues against the capacity of the negro for self-government, and denounces the plan of putting the governments of the Southern States almost entirely into the hands of the negroes, says it costs $200,000,000 yearly to maintain the supremacy of negro governments, refers to recent elections as additional reason for a change of policy from the recent plan of reconstruction. He has given much consideration to the question of how far the President's duty to protect, defend and preserve the Constitution requires him to go in opposing the unconstitutional actions of Congress. He has felt anxious to reach a proper conclusion on this serious and important question, and says the Executive resistance to the acts of Congress passed according to the forms of Constitution, might provoke civil war in times of high party excitement, which should only be resorted to as a last remedy, but cases might arise where the Executive might be compelled to protect rights, regardless of consequences. For example, if the Legislature should undertake to abolish the co-ordinate department of Government, the President must take the responsibility of his high office to save the life of the nation at all hazards. He thinks the reconstruction acts, though plainly unconstitutional, do not warrant forcible resistance on the part of the Executive. These wrongs may be redressed by the ballot, and the recent elections show they will be.

He then refers to frauds on the Treasury, and the temptation to corruption on the part of Revenue officers, denounces the tenure of office bill as a measure which prevents the Executive from discharging dishonest officials, and charges immense Revenue frauds as a result of its operation. This bill, says the President, makes him a common informer against corrupt officials, but takes away the power of removal. He thinks the President should be relieved from all responsibility, if not allowed to make appointments in his own discretion. The danger to public service comes from the power of appointments, and not from the power of removal, therefore the Constitution left the power of removal unrestricted, while it gave the Senate the right to reject appointments until Considerable space is devoted to the questions of finances, and urges the speedy resumption of specie payments, and denounces the present system of currency. Gives copious statistics in regard to the production of gold and silver in this country, facts and figures in regard to exports and imports; shows that it will be a comparatively easy matter to return to specie payments, pronounces a discounted currency the great evil, and says of all contrivances for cheating the laboring classes, none has been more effectual than that which deludes them with paper money. He expatiates at considerable length upon the evils of a depreciated currency, and advises the enactment of an import law, which will tax most heavily luxuries. He advises a reduction of the number of articles taxed, and urges retrenchment and economy in all departments of the Government.

He gives brief summaries of various reports. The Navy at [illegible] 238 v[illegible], and the expenditures of the Navy Department were $31,000,000. The important portions of the other reports were previously telegraphed.

His general review of our foreign relations shows a favorable condition of affairs.

He urges the importance of [illegible] a naval station in the West Indies. He recites experience of the revolutionary war and also of the late rebellion, to show the advantage of possessing such out-posts, and says that a treaty has been concluded with Denmark to purchase the islands of St. Thomas and St. Johns and calls the attention of Congress to the necessity of providing for the payment of [illegible].

No arrangement is made for the Alabama claims. He felt it his duty to decline the proposition of the British Government for arbitration, because hitherto it has been accompanied with reservations and limitations incompatible with the rights, interests and honor of the country. He does not apprehend Great Britain will persist in refusing to satisfy the most reasonable claims which involve the sacred principles of non-intervention. He refers to the doctrine that United States naturalization absolves native allegiance, a doctrine denied by Prussia and Great Britain. He calls on Congress to declare the national will unmistakably on this question, and concludes by suggesting a discontinuance of the stipulations maintaining naval forces to suppress the slave trade.

From New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—Gen. Hancock has issued orders to revoke Mower's last removals of Louisiana officials.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—A small body of French cavalry still occupy Rome, probably permanently. All the other French troops have vacated the Papal territory. The Pope has taken measures to materially strengthen the Papal army.

FLORENCE, Dec. 2.—The fortifications of Civita Vecchia are being strengthened so that a garrison of papal troops can hold the city as an open gate for the return of French troops, should the Pope hereafter require it.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—[illegible] has accepted the general [illegible]

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Times has an editorial on the Italian question, which it considers important as reflecting the policy of the British Government and the tone of public opinion. It makes strong argument against the continuance of the temporal power of the Pope, and expresses the belief that the [illegible] by Napoleon will never meet. It concludes by expressing the hope that the Pope and Italy must get rid of their mutual distrust, and come to an agreement without the assistance of the European powers.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 2.—The weather has been very inclement for the past few days. Several shipwrecks are reported, attended with loss of life.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—The Panama steamer Sacramento arrived here this morning.

The North American Steamship Co.'s new steamer, Nevada, has arrived at Panama, en route for San Francisco, to take her place on the opposition line to Panama.

The new Board of Supervisors met last night. Speeches were made by the retiring members and Mayor Coon, and also by Mayor McCoppin. The latter [illegible] announced his intention of applying to the Legislature to be relieved from presiding over the meetings of the Board, as he thought it improper that the Mayor, who has no vote in the Board, should be present at meetings where he would be liable to form opinions and possibly become a partisan in matters upon which he might afterwards be compelled to exercise the veto privilege. Mr. McCoppin further said: "If we cannot have two small governing bodies, each to act as a check upon the other, then we ought to have one large one. The governing power of this municipal corporation may be said to rest in the hands of seven men. Seven votes will pass any measure, except when a veto is interposed, then eight suffice, and I have yet to see any measure of importance defeated by an exercise of the veto power. The difference between seven and eight votes is so small, that they are hardly [illegible] to those who seek to affect any particular legislation."

Frank Lisso and Geo. Smith, arrested a few evenings since for shooting and wounding two women at a house on Sacramento street, have been held to answer in the sum of $5,000 each.

Elder Joseph Knapp, the celebrated Evangelist, arrived by the steamer to-day. He will hold his first extended meeting with the Baptist Church in Stockton, commencing on next Sunday.

Commencing Thursday next, three days running races will be held at the Ocean House track. $800 in purses will be given.

A man died in the city recently, and his remains were placed in the receiving vault of one of the cemeteries; his widow, attached to a religious faith opposite to that of the society owning the cemetery, desires to remove the body to another burial place, but the church authorities having its custody, refuse to deliver it up without an order of court directing them to do so, and the widow is endeavoring to obtain a writ of replevin in order to get possession of her husband's body and bury it elsewhere.

By way of Panama we have further particulars of the great [illegible] in the West Indies. The Panama Star and Herald says the L. W. J. & P. S. S. Co's fine new steamer [illegible] was lost, together with the Royal mail steamships Rhone, Wye, Conway and Derwent—the two former with great loss of life. The total number of vessels lost and disabled, is stated to be 79, and the total loss of life 600. The destruction of property, in short, has been very great.

The steamer Great Republic will sail for Yokohama and Hong Kong to-morrow noon.

Money Market.

Gold in New York to-day at 11 A. M., 137¾; sterling, 109½.

Arrived—Bark Perthia from Valparaiso. Liverpool telegrams report that the ship Lydia Williams, bound from San Francisco, is ashore at Holyhead, and is supposed to be a total wreck.

FROM MR. PITTOCK.—I have used some of Henley's Royal Balsam in my family, and think it is splendid medicine for children, as well as for grown persons. For coughs and colds I freely recommend it to the public.

Buchtel's Photograph Gallery is the only establishment in Oregon that is thoroughly prepared to do all the different styles of work in the art. Photographs from card to life size. The new cabinet cards, &c., by Small pictures enlarged (retouched in India ink—painted in water-colors or oil by Mrs. S. J. Rumsey. Pictures that are fading can be reproduced in this way. All negatives taken in this gallery will be carefully preserved, and additional copies had. I have now on hand a very large collection of negatives, the names of which are recorded alphabetically in a book for that purpose that can be seen in the reception room.

SPERMATORRHEA.

DR. DOHERTY has just published an important pamphlet, embodying his own views and experiences in relation to Impotence or Virility; being a Short Treatise on Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, Nervous and Physical Debility consequent on this condition, and other Diseases of the Sexual Organs.

This little Work contains information of the utmost value to all, whether married or single, and will be sent Free by mail on receipt of Six Cents in postage stamps for return postage. Address

SEVERAL GENTLEMEN ELECTED to the Legislature of Washington Territory left this morning for Olympia, in good spirits and very sanguine to carry their different points. Those that have bought their nice and well fitting suits of KOHN & FISHEL will certainly make a good impression and will convince our Washington Territory friends that the only and best place to buy Clothing as well as Dry Goods is at KOHN & FISHEL'S, No. 91 Front street.

GLORIOUS NEWS FOR THE MILLION!

ANNUAL GRAND OPENING

SANTA CLAUS' BUDGET!

McCORMICK'S

BOOK STORE!

WHERE MY

HEAD-QUARTERS

HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED

For the Past Six Years,

and where

I WILL HOLD MY ANNUAL CARNIVAL

DURING THE COMING HOLIDAYS!

MY BUDGET FOR THIS SEASON

COMPRISES

THE LARGEST STOCK!

with

THE HANDSOMEST GOODS!!

and

The Cheapest Prices!

AND THAT ALL MAY OBSERVE

The Christmas and New Years'

HOLIDAYS!

I herewith issue my Annual PROCLAMATION!!!

I've come, my dear people, among you once more,
Keeping up the good custom established of yore
I bid you all welcome! I wish you good cheer—
A right merry Christmas and Happy New Year!
You will find me this year, as you have heretofore,
At McCormick's, on Front street—the People's Book Store
Where I've opened my Budget—'twas filled to the brim
With every nice Toy that could talk, walk or swim.
I've Musical Work Boxes—and Guitars for the fair
And Gifts for the Gents that are both rich and rare,
Whilst my Budget includes the nicest new Toys
Intended as Gifts to good Girls and Boys!
I've the Ark in which Grandfather Noah was kept
When all other creatures from the world were swept,
(For men in those days would in evil persist,
So the world was washed by an Oregon mist!)
I've Babies of Rubber, of wax and of leather,
(They were all made to order), and well put together;
I've Vases and Cups nicely gilded outside,
And little Cock Horses for Bobbies to ride,
I've Cannon and Pistols which cannot explode,
For the reason they hold neither wadding or load.
I've steamboats that run—you just wind them in front
And they'll beat the Cascade or the Wilson G. H [illegible]
I've a new Locomotive—It can never explode,
'Twas built for the use of Gaston's Railroad,
I've Engines that play—Set them down on the floor
And they'll throw greater streams than old '2' or new '4.'
I've Furniture, Fiddles, and French Funkers,
Soldiers that look like B. B. Pioneers.
I've Swords made of tin—Guns and Pistols as well,
And the new kind of Drum that rings like a bell.
I've Masks of all sizes—I've Grace Hoops, galoes,
And you'll find at McCORMICK'S a thousand Toys more,
On FRONT STREET the Store is—105,
Where TOYS are as plenty as bees in a hive;
Go there and buy them—this is my request,
His Prices are Low and his Stock is the Best.

{L. S.} Given at my Palace in Wonderland, this 30th day of the eleventh month, being the first year of the reign of George the Third in Webfoot.

SIXTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.—We have just received from W. [illegible] City a copy of the Ulster County Gazette dated [illegible], 1800, sent us by Lieut. Jas. Halloran, late of the D[illegible] Mountaineer. It was printed originally, on very brownish paper, very thin and coarse. Age has made it a whitish brown or something a shade darker. John Adams was then President and the Gazette [illegible], along with Congressional proceedings, his reply to the addresses of the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, both of which would fill about [illegible] of this column. Besides this matter, the paper is mostly filled with accounts of the progress of the [illegible] war against France, and the special proceedings of Congress upon the death of George Washington, which occurred twenty-one days before this issue, and the inside of the paper is dressed in mourning, in respect to the memory of the illustrious dead. Instead of using turned rules—the fashion of the present day—the heavy black lines were produced, evidently, by the use of thick riglets. Washington died on the 14th day of December, 1799. In the Gazette's report of the proceedings in the House of Representatives of December 19th occurs the following: "Mr. Marshall with deep sorrow on his countenance, and in a low, pathetic tone of voice, rose and addressed the House as follows— The melancholy event which was yesterday announced without doubt, has been rendered but too certain. Our Washington is no more! The hero, the sage, and the patriot of America—the man on whom in times of danger, every eye was turned and all hopes were placed, lives now only in his own great actions, and in the hearts of an afflicted people." Mr. Marshall, afterward, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, went on at some length in this announcement, speaking eloquently of the virtues of the great Washington, concluding with the following: "Let us then, Mr. Speaker, pay the last tribute of respect and affection to our departed friend. Let the grand council of the nation display those sentiments which the nation feels. For this purpose, I hold in my hand some resolutions which I will take the liberty to offer to the House:

Resolved, That this House will wait on the President of the United States, in condolence of this mournful event.

Resolved, That the Speaker's chair be shrouded with black and that the members and officers of the House wear black during the session.

Resolved, That a committee, in conjunction with one from the Senate, be appointed to consider on the most suitable manner of paying honor to the memory of the man, first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his country."

The authorship of the concluding clause of the last resolution has always been credited to Gen. Henry Lee who used the words in his subsequent eulogy, delivered at the formal request of the House of Representatives. It matters little who first used them they are familiar as household words to every American and they belong to Washington. The biographer of Gen. Lee claims that Gen. Lee, who was then a member of the House, drew up the resolutions and that Mr. Marshall presented them during his temporary absence. In the biography, the word "country" is changed to "countrymen" and it is always now so quoted. After the resolutions, the Gazette publishes the addresses of the Senate and House, to the President and his replies, all of them as regards brevity and pithiness, in strong contrast with the long-winded and wordy productions on similar occasions of the present age.

In the advertising department of the paper we find some quaint things. For instance, the following which reveals that buying and selling human chattels was then not unknown in New York: "For sale, the one-half of a saw mill, with a convenient place for building, lying in the town of Rochester. By the mill is an inexhaustible quantity of pinewood, and also a stout, healthy, active Negro wench." The following is a specimen of the rhyming advertisement, then somewhat in vogue; [illegible]:

"He has received near every kind
That you in any Store can find
And as I purchase by the bale
I am determined to retail
For ready pay a little lower
Than ever have been had before.

* * * *

You always may find me by my sign
A few rods from the house divine."

THE Montana began taking in cargo yesterday, [illegible] rule, first come, first served, and immediately there was the old story of "scrouging" [illegible] to be first on board with their wheat and flour. Every dray and truck to be had was pressed into service and in the afternoon there were all sorts of wagons [illegible] anything and any way, to get the produce on the [illegible]. To avoid confusion and dissatisfaction, each dray, truck or wagon was required to be unloaded in the order in which it fell into the procession. Of course each [illegible] to be first on board as well as first, and so the [illegible] were fed with every pound they were able to be safe under, and in many cases a sharp [illegible] was [illegible]. A. B. would load two drays, with as much as the horses could [illegible] on the [illegible] and down grade to the wharf; both drays would then [illegible] to the wharf and just before the turn of either to be unloaded came, the load of one would be piled on top of the other, and then the [illegible] would [illegible]. At 4 o'clock there were forty drays, trucks and wagons in waiting to unload. The [illegible] was full, the wharf was full; the draymen were [illegible] sweating and doubling [illegible] to hurry up the [illegible]. As much as five tons was often put on a [illegible] horse truck. Horse flesh [illegible] of no account [illegible] hurry [illegible] trucks were [illegible] into requisition to transport flour from the P. T. Co.'s wharf, adjoining. Every man seemed to have but one purpose [illegible] the world [illegible] to get the [illegible] all possible [illegible] of his own or his employer's [illegible] in the [illegible]. Their [illegible] was [illegible] with the [illegible]. At dark the bows of the ship had gone [illegible] or three feet. Throughout the day, the scene was a most lively one. No one can have any just idea of the [illegible] amount of produce on hand here crowding for [illegible] he first witness such a [illegible] day and then visit the store [illegible] to see how very [illegible] the impression made on the [illegible] in store. There is enough left in the [illegible] to load two more such ships, even should not [illegible] arrive from the interior.

"LANDMARKS GONE."—Every growing place has its landmarks—something to [illegible] one that the [illegible] was once a wee thing and that it is now getting too big for its clothes. Portland has its landmarks—buildings, or rather, structures which were put up in that [illegible] mentioned as "boys of the [illegible] of the [illegible] inhabitants". As [illegible] expands and the city [illegible] put on more airs and brick ones, these old structures, one by one pass away to give place to bigger and more pretentious buildings. One of the "landmarks" was the little old shanty on the corner of Alder and [illegible] streets, lately occupied by Smith Bros. as a foundry and machine shop. It was torn down yesterday to give place, as we suppose, to a "better thing." As long ago as 1852, we remember it was [illegible] rather [illegible] a building in a somewhat lonely [illegible]. We suppose that there may be somebody living who could tell its history [illegible] for years and years it was [illegible] among its contemporaries; how it has gradually [illegible] into the [illegible] which finally [illegible] its ignominious doom; how many men have made [illegible] in it and builded high-toned [illegible] and shops [illegible] and then turned their backs upon it; but if we [illegible] meet such an one, we are sure that one [illegible] respect for old age would be called into active exercise. The old [illegible] is now, however, but a heap of ruins. But what cares the city? The city is marching on, and can't wait for "landmarks," or any other man.

FROM OSWEGO.—A gentleman who came down from [illegible] by the Alert, yesterday, informs us that the iron works at that place were engaged yesterday in the [illegible] of casting water conducting pipes, of [illegible] iron direct from the smelting furnace. The result of the [illegible]ment was not known when he left. The water of Oswego lake has become so low that it is difficult to keep the machinery of the blast house going. There is talk that a canal will be dug connecting the lake with the Tualatin river, in order to procure a plentiful supply of water.

I. O. G. T.—Mr. W. H. Lupton writes from Oysterville, Pacific county, W. T., Nov. 23d: "[illegible] Adams [illegible] a lodge of Good Templars here on the 16th of Nov., 1867, of fifteen charter members. We have [illegible] our lodge Ocean Wave Lodge. I send you the list of officers: Wm. H. Lupton, W. C. T.; Miss Viola Warman, W. V. T.; Saxfield E. Soule, W. S.; Isaac N. Lane, W. F. S.; Hiram Wing, W. T. and L. D.; Charles D. Soule, W. M.; Miss Marilla H. J[illegible], W. I. G.; J. K. Brison, W. O. G.; Thomas Warman, W. C.; Mrs. Henrietta Clark, P. W. C. T.

APPOINTMENT OF CIRCUIT JUDGE.—It is reported that a telegram was received in this city yesterday announcing the appointment of W. W. Upton, Esq., as Judge of this Judicial District, vice B. D. Shattuck resigned. There is no [illegible] to doubt the correctness of the report. Mr. Upton, who came from California about three years ago, has had the practice of law in this city, has been City Attorney, and a member of the House of Representatives from this city.

WATER FREIGHT.—Arrived per steamer Alert from Oregon City yesterday, 13 boxes miscellaneous produce, 23 bbls do, 1,047 boxes apples, 4 hogs, 17 gunnies dried apples, 1,506 qr sks flour, 1 bale furs, 13 pcs castings, 16 sks onions, 8 pkgs m'dse.

DISCHARGED.—The Palkinburg finished discharging her cargo of merchandise last evening, at Couch & Flanders's wharf. She will probably commence taking in a cargo of produce this afternoon. Capt. Gragg thinks he will sail in two or three days.

RISING.—Capt. Baughman, of the Alert, says the Willamette rose at Canemah, about one foot between Monday afternoon and yesterday afternoon. Navigation will soon be "hunkydory" and then look out for the floods of produce to come.

COUNTY COURT MARQUAM JUDGE.—Proceedings of [illegible], Dec. 3d:

P. Riley & Co. vs. D. Gally; judgment for defendant.

W. W. Chapman vs. Reuben Breed; continued till next term.

DOWN THE RIVER.—The J. H. Couch arrived last evening from Astoria. She reports that the barkentine Occident got in on Monday and the Couch towed her up to West's Mills yesterday.

ADJOURNED.—The Spartan B. B. club, at a meeting of the members Monday evening, adjourned play for the [illegible]

SALE OF REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.—At 10 o'clock this [illegible], Mr. A. B. Richardson, Auctioneer, will offer for sale to the best bidder, several lots and parts of blocks [illegible] in this city. One of the lots, in Couch's Addition, has on it a two-story house. Mr. R. will also sell to-day a lot of groceries, furniture and general merchandise. At 11 o'clock, a special sale of furniture at the [illegible] of Jos. A. Strowbridge, corner [illegible] and [illegible] streets.

REMOVAL.—Dr. J. A. Chapman has removed his office. He may hereafter be found at No. 49, First street, up stairs, on the same floor with Buchtel's Photograph Gallery.

STATE ITEMS.

Wood sells at Umatilla at $10 a cord.

The municipal election at Salem resulted in the re-election of the present officers of the city. About 260 votes were thrown.

The Record has the following, dated Grande Ronde, Nov. 30th: The Republicans of Douglas precinct had a meeting last evening at the Burden School House, for the purpose of organizing a Union Club. There was a good turn out. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting, among whom were Judge Lamson and W. W. Hoone. After organizing the club, there were three hearty cheers given for the Union cause, also three rousing cheers for General Grant for President in 1868. The Union party of old Polk are very sanguine of their ability to carry the election next June by a large increased majority.

The Unionist thus notices the "Humors of Salem journalism": "There have been published here a couple of journalistic luminaries of infinitesimal proportions. One rose tardily in the morning and winked sleepily; the other blinked in the evening like a sick glow-worm, or a defunct sardine on the verge of sundown. Finding that a distribution of light in detail is bad economy, the pair have got on the same side of the meridian, and henceforward will shine in conjunction in the morning. This judicious concentration of light will be of great consequence to the people of the Willamette valley, at a season when the sun is tardy in his coming, and when the horizon is so long overcast with murky vapors. We trust these luminous phenomena, revolving thus in contiguous orbits, will not come into collision, and that neither will be compelled to "lift its fiery tail" and scoot into chaos.

The Umatilla Press has the following: On Saturday night last about 12 o'clock, a man named James Waters, better known as "One-eyed Jim," was shot by John Miller, at the old Bank Exchange Building, which was being used at the time as a masquerade ball room. It appears that Miller and Waters had had some angry words together, and while Miller was standing at the bar, about to take a drink, Waters approached, pistol in hand, declaring he could whip any son of a b—h that didn't like him. Miller retreated towards the door, but Waters continuing to follow him, he drew his pistols and both parties fired at about the same time. Waters was struck in the abdomen, the ball coming out near the left hip, while the bullet from his pistol passed through the door, near the feet of Miller. Miller immediately gave himself into custody and on Monday was arraigned on a charge of shooting with attempt to kill; after hearing the evidence, Justice Moore discharged the prisoner, it being evident he acted in self-defence. Prosecuting Attorney Slater appeared on the part of the State, and Messrs. Dugan and Morford for Miller. Waters, who is being attended by Dr. Taff, will probably recover.

A Paris paper says that when the railroad across the American continent shall be finished, Paris, London and Berlin will be nearer China and Australia by way of New York than in going by way of Calcutta, and that this will be a more important fact to Europe than was the campaign of Sadowa.

BILLIARDS.—George Green has just fitted up a pleasant billiard room—apart from the saloon—and supplied it with a couple of very pretty tables of three-quarter size and with the Phelan cushions. They are the most perfect of any we know in the city, and the place being entirely separate from the drinking saloon, we know of no better place to go to, for billiards.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF IDAHO—BOISE CITY, I. T.—Organized March 11th, 1867, (with circulation) under Act of Congress, approved June 3d, 1864. Authorized capital $500,000. Paid up capital, $100,000. B. M. DuRell, President. C. W. Moore, Cashier. Collections of Notes and Accounts on the principal places in Idaho Territory promptly attended to. Exchange for Coin or Currency on this Bank can be purchased of Ladd & Tilton, Portland, Oregon.

PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER.

THE UNIVERSAL REMEDY FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL COMPLAINTS!

At this period there are but few of the human race unacquainted with the merits of the Pain Killer; but while some extol it as a liniment, they know but little of its power in easing pain when taken internally, while others use it internally with great success, but are equally ignorant of its healing virtues when applied externally. We therefore wish to say to all that it is equally successful whether used internally or externally, and it stands alone, unrivalled by all the great catalogue of Family Medicines, and its sale is universal and immense. The demand for it from India and other foreign countries is equal to the demand at home, and it has become known in these far off places by its merits.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU
Is a certain cure for diseases of the BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL, DROPSY, ORGANIC WEAKNESS, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, GENERAL DEBILITY, and all diseases of the
URINARY ORGANS,

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS!

A Pure and Powerful Tonic,

Corrective and Alterative, of wonderful efficacy in Diseases of the STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.

PROTECTIVE PROPERTIES.

Prevents Fever and Ague and Bilious Remittent Fever; Fortifies the System against Miasma and the evil effects of unwholesome water; Invigorates the organs of digestion and the bowels;
Steadies the Nerves and tends to Prolong Life.

REMEDIAL PROPERTIES.

Cures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Sick and Nervous Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation, Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Sea Sickness, Cramps and Spasms, and all complaints of either sex arising from Bodily Weakness, whether inherent in the system or PRODUCED BY SPECIAL CAUSES.

NOTHING THAT IS NOT WHOLESOME, GENIAL, and restorative in its nature, enters into the composition of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind; no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants, with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants.

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated, and the appetite restored by this Tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia, and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs.

Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous Attacks, Lowness of Spirits, and Fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is conclusive, and from both sexes.

As a Genuine Tonic, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of Constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and Debility and Decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them.

Last, but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innoxious materials, and entirely free from the acrid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

A Letter Never Sent.

I.

Those longing eyes may never more behold Thee,
Those longing arms may never more enfold Thee,
To my sad heart I never more may press Thee,
But day and night I never cease to bless Thee.

II.

I do not envy those who may be near Thee,
Who have that joy supreme—who see Thee, hear Thee;
I bless them, also, knowing they, too, love Thee,
And that they prize no earthly thing above thee.

III.

I do not even hope again to meet Thee,
I never dare to think how I should greet Thee,
Low in the dust should I fall down before Thee,
And kneeling there, for pardon should implore Thee.

IV

Alas! 'twould be a sin to kneel before Thee!
A sin to let Thee know I still adore Thee!
I kneel and pray that Heaven may bless and guide Thee;
Love of my life! to Heaven's care I confide Thee.
—Blackwood.

"Adopted."

"It's very strange," muttered Blanche Penroy, slowly weaving together the wreath of scarlet autumn leaves with which she was decorating her broad brimmed straw hat.

"Yes, it is very strange," went on Miss Penroy musing with herself. "I know so little about him—I have only known him ten days—yet when he spoke about leaving Elm Point last night, it seemed as if all the sunshine were going out of the world for me. O, Blanche! you naughty, naughty little Blanche!" she added, leaning forward, and apostrophising the fair face mirrored in the glen stream at her feet. "Is it possible that you have allowed yourself to fall in love with that tall, black-eyed young Southerner? Ten days ago I had never seen him—and now!"

The roses mounted up into her cheeks as she wondered within herself whether Gilbert Evering cared for her.

"I wish I knew," she uttered aloud.

"Knew what?" demanded a calm voice, and Mr. Evering took up a bunch of grasses on the log, and cooly seated himself beside her, a straight, handsome man, with brilliant dark eyes, rather irregular features, and a deep color glowing through his olive skin.

Blanche demurely looked up to him—she was not to be taken by storm thus easily.

"Whether it would rain to-morrow, for our picnic. I want to wear my white India muslin!"

"Oh, the pic-nic; I had forgotten that when I spoke of leaving to-morrow. Of course, though, my presence or absence will make no very great difference?"

Blanche was silent. Somehow that scarlet and brown spotted maple leaf required a great deal of adjustment in the ribbon of her hat.

"Blanche, shall I go or stay?"

"Just as you please."

"No; just as somebody else pleases. Yes or no! And I forewarn you, and yes means a great [illegible]!"

"How much does it mean?" questioned Blanche, half timorously.

"Every thing!"

"Then you may stay!"

"My Blanche—my little white daisy!" he whispered, bending his stately head over the slender head that lay on the autumn leaves. And Blanche felt that in the golden stillness of that October dell she had turned a new page in her life.

She was very, very happy, and all that day she seemed to be walking through the bright mysteries of a dream. But with the morning [illegible] other feelings, alas! that shadow should always follow sunshine in this world of ours.

"I'm not supposed to be unreasonable, Blanche," said Gilbert in a whisper, as he arranged her white lace shawl for her, amid the merry [illegible] of the pic nic ground, "but I do think you've waltzed quite often enough with that puppy Birmingham."

"Jealous already, Gilbert!" taunted the girl, flushed and rosy with the triumphs of her beauty, and the irresistible instincts of coquetry. She colored [illegible].

"Of course, you'll do as you please, Blanche; only I warn you, it's a choice between Walter Birmingham and me. You dance with him again at your own risk!"

At that instant Walter came up and respectfully asked:

"Can I have the pleasure of the polka with Miss Penroy?"

And Blanche, defiant, and willful, and a little piqued, answered—

"Yes!"

And glided away with her plump hand on Birmingham's shoulder. Gilbert had no business to be so unreasonable.

His grave, [illegible] face rather startled her as she came back to the rustic seat of [illegible] boughs when the [illegible] had been finished, and Walter had gone to [illegible] her an iced lemonade.

"Gilbert, why do you look so cross?"

"Because I have reason. I am sorry you pay so little attention to my wishes, Miss Penroy."

She drew herself up haughtily.

"You are beginning to dictate early, sir!"

"Have I not the right?"

"Nothing of the sort, Mr. Evering."

"Be it so, Blanche," he said, in a voice that betrayed how deep the arrow rankled in his heart. "I give up the right now and forever."

Blanche was startled. She would have said [illegible], but Birmingham was advancing toward her, and when next she had leisure to look round, Gilbert was gone from her side.

"What is he [illegible]?" she thought [illegible]. "I'll see him this evening and coax him into good humor [illegible]. He surely can't be vexed at me for one little word like that."

Ah, little Blanche, it is not the well considered sin [illegible] that does all the harm in the world—it is the idle word!

"Such a charming day as we have had, Mrs. Traine," said Blanche, as she [illegible] up the steps of the hotel piazza, sparkling and radiant as if the weight of [illegible] was not gnawing at her heart.

"That, of course," said the blooming matron who was [illegible] in an easy chair under the [illegible] of the vines. "But what sent Mr. Evering away in such a hurry?"

"Sent him away?"

"Yes by the evening train. He came home, packed his things, and drove away as if there was not a [illegible] to lose. I am very sorry; we shall miss him so much."

Blanche went slowly up stairs and sat down by her window, looking out at the purple glow of the evening [illegible] as if it were a fantastic bank. So he was gone away, and by her own folly she had lost the priceless treasure of Gilbert Evering's love.

"I cannot write to him, for I do not know his address," she said with clasped hands and tearless eyes. "Well, it is my own fault, and I must abide the consequences as best I may."

Blanche Penroy went home from the gay summer lounging-place a sadder and wiser woman; and the November mists drooping o'er the brick-and-mortar wilderness of her New York home, had never [illegible] half so dreary to her before as they [illegible] now.

"I shall be an old maid," thought Blanche; as she walked up and down the fire-light darkness of her quiet drawing rooms, with her dimpled hands [illegible] behind her waist.

"I never care for any one now as I cared for—for Gilbert; and I dare say I shall keep a cat and grow fond of green tea, and scandal, and the sewing circles! Ah, well-a-day! this kind of life cannot last forever!"

She rang the bell with an impatient jerk.

"Are there any letters, Sanderson?"

"One, ma'am; it came by the evening post only a few moments since."

Blanche sat down by the fire and opened it, and commenced to read.

"Black-edged—and black seal! So poor Mrs. Marchmont is gone at last!"

It was from the executors of Miss Penroy's distant cousin, formally and briefly announcing her death, which had taken place in one of the West India Islands some months since; but of which the "melancholy news," as the letter ran, had only just been received. It was not entirely unexpected, as Mrs. Marchmont had for some years been slowly fading out of the world, a victim to hereditary consumption.

"Leaving one child, a son," slowly repeated Blanche, leaning her cheek on her hand, and looking down into the fiery quiver of the white hot coals. "Poor little fellow! he must feel [illegible] as desolate and alone as I do! only I have one advantage—I have a sufficiency of this world's goods, and this orphaned child must be thrown penniless and alone on his own resources, for if I remember aright, Mrs. Marchmont forfeited all the wealth of her first marriage by her second alliance with that poverty-stricken lawyer whose death plunged her into such bitter mourning. It was a generous love match, yet how much grief and trouble it brought with it, leaving one child, a son! why should I not adopt the stray waif, and make it a business of my life to cherish and comfort him? I have no object in existence; here is one that Providence seems to have pointed out to me."

Once more she rang the bell, with a fresh color glowing in her cheeks, and a new light in her eye.

"Bring in my writing case immediately, Sanderson, and get ready to take a letter to the post as soon as possible."

The old servant obeyed, wondering at his mistress' unwonted energy, and yet well pleased to see some of her old animation returning.

It was a very simple and unconscious letter that Blanche Penroy wrote to her "far away cousin's" executors from the fullness of her heart.

"I shall never marry now," she wrote, "and it seems to become my plainly indicated duty to undertake the care of this orphan child of my cousin's, Mrs. Marchmont. With your approval, therefore, I propose to adopt him, and endeavor, as far as in my power, to supply the place of his lost mother. You may at first deem me young to undertake so grave and serious a responsibility; but I was nineteen last month, and I am very, very much older in thought and feeling than my years. Of course, at my death, the child will inherit the property which was left me by my dear deceased parents."

"I hope my cousin's executors are like the nice, white headed old lawyers one reads about in novels," said Blanche to herself as she folded the little perfumed sheet of pink paper, "and not cross fudges, talking of 'expediency' and 'appropriates,' for I do so much want somebody to love and care for; and somehow I've a sort of premonition that this little fellow will be nice and rosy and lovable. I think I'll teach him to call me 'aunty.'"

Just a week subsequently, a prime, legal note was received from Messrs. Alias & Corpus, the deceased lady's executors, stating that "they saw no valid objection to Miss Penroy's very laudable projects, and that in accordance thereto, the child of the late Mrs. Marchmont, would arrive at Miss Penroy's residence on the following Saturday."

"Saturday—and this is Friday," said Blanche, with a new brightness dancing in her hazel eyes. "Oh, how glad I shall be! Sanderson, tell Mrs Brown to have the blue room fitted up immediately for Master Marchmont, and you had better go yourself to the depot, with the carriage, at five to morrow afternoon to meet him."

"Yes, ma'am," replied Sanderson, somewhat stolidly. The apparition of a great unruly boy tramping with muddy boots on the velvet carpets and haunting the house with ball and marbles, and lung-splitting halloes, did not possess the charm to Sanderson's eyes that it seemed to his mistress. And even the patient Mrs. Brown remarked, with a species of exasperation, that—

"She didn't see what put this freak into Miss Blanche's head."

Saturday was a day of hail and tempest, and by five o'clock the drawing-rooms were lighted, and the crimson silk curtains closely drawn, to exclude the stormy darkness without. Six times within the last fifteen minutes had Blanche looked at her watch, as she stood by the fire waiting to hear the approach of the carriage. She was dressed in a rich China-blue silk dress, with pearl pin and ear-drops, and a little point lace at her throat, and the clear rosy tint on her cheeks. She was, unconsciously, very beautiful.

"Oh, I hope he will like me," thought Blanche, with the instinctive yearning for love that comes to every woman's heart, as the door was opened.

"Here's the little gentleman, Miss," said Sanderson, with a half suppressed sound between a laugh and a snort.

But, instead of a child of seven or eight years old a tall, handsome young gentleman, something over six feet, with a black mustache, and merry hazel eyes brimming over with mirth. For an instant Blanche stared at him as if she could hardly credit the evidence of her own senses.

"Gilbert!"

"Exactly. You wanted to adopt me, and here I am."

"No, but, Gilbert——"

"Yes, but, Blanche!"

"You are not Mrs. Marchmont's son!"

"I am—by her first marriage. Although I am by no means the penniless infant you seemed to suppose, as all my father's wealth comes to me, I am quite willing to be adopted—particularly as you are not married to Mr. Birmingham."

Blanche struggled between tears and laughter, uncertain which could best express her feelings, but Gilbert Evering drew her tenderly towards him.

"If you adopt me, dearest, it must be for life. Nay, do not hesitate—our happiness has already been too much at the mercy of trifles. You will not retract your offer?"

Well after all," said Blanche, rather demurely, "you will be a good little boy, and mind all your 'aunty' tells you? All I wanted was some one to love and care for, and—"

"And I shall do so very well in that capacity, eh?"

"Yes."

Sanderson, who had been listening diligently at the door, went down stairs to inform Mrs. Brown that "they were going to have a new master!"

The Hudson's Bay Company Monopoly.—We take the following from the New York Times of November 8th:

It is now [illegible] years since the Hudson's Bay Company [illegible] the early [illegible] ation of [illegible] the Northwest, present [illegible] first, of inc[illegible] and thereby enlarg[illegible] for the purpose of selling out to good advantage.

It issued stock in 1863 to the amount of two millions sterling, which was readily taken up. * * * The change was made with an adroitness characteristic of the men. The reorganized Company, in its prospectus, promised to establish a plan of colonization along the southern boundary line, wherever there was land to attract settlers. The Directors proclaimed their utmost readiness to surrender to cultivation their hunting grounds as soon as they shall be required, and to prepare the way for immigration as fast and on as liberal a scale as their means would afford, resigning their proprietary rights—upon receiving reasonable compensation—whenever the British Parliament should see fit to organize a colony within the territory. The Company's promises have not been redeemed. The only show they have made of attracting settlement has been simply to order surveys for the opening up of lines of 'telegraphic' communication. And that work has proceeded so slowly that the residents of the Red River country despair of ever seeing it completed under the Company's direction.

The sparse population in the valley of the Saskatchewan are dissatisfied, and the movement in Vancouver's Island, looking to annexation to the United States, has given them nerve to represent their grievances as intolerable.

A change in their political relations is regarded by nearly all the responsible residents as an absolute necessity of their existence. The newly Confederated provinces have for the time enough on hand, without attempting to take the Northwest or Pacific colonies in charge. The purchase of the former would involve an outlay of at least $10,000,000 before they could set up even a feasible claim to a title. As much more would be needed to open up communication with the Northwest Colony. And even then, the question of permanent possession would not be solved. The settlements in Northern Minnesota are advancing so rapidly towards the high latitudes that the Hudson's Bay Company's subjects find all their material interests lie in the direction of that prosperous State; and they would vote to-morrow, had they the right of voting, for annexation to the United States.

The Election—Presidential Prospects.—A dispatch to the Chicago Times, dated November 6th, says: The November election news has continued to absorb public attention to-day, to the exclusion of most everything else of general interest, in and out of official circles. The presence of a large number of politicians in Washington, including a great many Senators and members, has added not a little to the interest in the discussion of the results—for their speculations and views have been freely given. Those who are favorable to the nomination of Grant for President, including his particular friend, Representative Washburne, declare that the result in New York and New Jersey, and the probable defeat of the negro suffrage amendments in Minnesota and Kansas, render the nomination of Grant a foregone conclusion. They are at the same time very indignant at the charge of Greeley, in to-day's New York Tribune, that the Grant Republicans staid away from the polls in New York, so as to allow the Democrats to carry the State, and thus force the Republicans to unite on Grant for the Presidency in preference to Chase or any other candidate. On the other hand, the friends of Chase declare that they are not alarmed, and that not a jot of the party platform, as enunciated in Congress, must be abated.

The departure of the Chief Justice for New York this evening gives considerable zest to the speculations of the politicians. The Democrats, of course, are greatly rejoiced at the result, but take particular pains to declare that it is nowise an endorsement of the administration, but a battle won entirely without its assistance. They point to New York, where Johnson was not mentioned in the Democratic State Convention, as proof of this. The New York city Democrats, however, have been freely telegraphing to the President the returns. Some of them are prefixed with a "God bless you."

The President Weakens.—The following appears among the dispatches in the New Orleans Weekly Picayune of Nov. 2d:

Washington, Oct. 31.—I regret to say that, as the period of trial approaches, the President shows indications of a wavering purpose. Bogy, his confidential friend, left for St. Louis yesterday in disgust. Before his departure, Bogy expressed to his political intimates his conviction that the President will do nothing which will satisfy the expectations of his friends and supporters, and the demands of the exigency in the country's affairs which threatens to call for prudence, firmness and rapid action. The President, Mr. Bogy says, continues to make promises, which he (Bogy) thinks are slim guarantees for the performance of what the country expects.

An Alpine Glacier.—The amount of ice which constitutes a glacier, in some cases becomes perfectly enormous. In some instances, as in that of the Rhone glacier, or the Mer de Glace of Mt. Blanc and the valley of Chamouny, the glacier attains a length of from 12 to 18 miles from its extreme summit winding downward to its foot. In some places this from one quarter to one half a mile wide and hundreds of feet thick. Such a stupendous mass as necessarily ploughs everything before it, carries gigantic granite boulders on its back, and rolls up immense furrows of broken granite and pulverized rocks on either side. These are called Moraines, and I have seen them 100 feet high, with a corresponding width. These are the most wondrous evidence of the might of the glacier. In visiting a glacier, you start from the valley below, and winding through green fields at the foot of the mountain, in the course of half an hour reach the end of the ice river. Ice river, I say, for the first impression is that of an ocean torrent frozen in mid air. This lower part is broad and thick. It ends abruptly, and on its surface looks somewhat gray with venerable age. It is covered with debris and fragments of granite. They look as if they had just fallen there, although they may have lain there thousands of years. From the lower end issues a stream of cold water, made gray with the pulverized rock which it brings with it from beneath the glacier. This color is maintained for hundreds of miles down the stream, as it is constantly being fed by similar currents along the route. The point whence the water issues from the glacier is called a "door," and in some cases is a mighty gateway. That of Mer de Glace in some years has been 100 feet high. The adventurer can penetrate some distance beneath. In other cases the "door" is not, and the "glacier milk," as Schiler in his "William Tell" call the water, creeps from beneath.—Cor. Toledo Commercial.

A Boiling Lake.—There is a singular boiling cauldron, or lake, near Humphreys Station, in Monitor Valley, Reese River, which is said to be well worthy of a visit. In the center of a low, round hill, composed of sedimentary matter, there is a natural bowl about seventy-five feet in diameter, and apparently sixty or seventy feet in depth. At the bottom there is a large volume of scalding hot water constantly in active ebullition. The water is so remarkably pure that a stone thrown into it is seen descending with a slow spiral motion to a great depth, being gradually drawn towards the point where the spring seems to burst from the rocks beneath. The lake has no outlet, and the water stands about 20 feet below its banks.

THE ROYAL BALSAM!

Has now been before the public for a length of time, and wherever used is highly recommended, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used; and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction, but, on the contrary, all are delighted with it and speak in the highest terms of its magical effects. The astonishing efficacy of the ROYAL BALSAM, in curing the diseases for which it is recommended entitles it to the highest rank among the list of medicines, and no family can be without it after once trying it.

Read the following testimonials from some of the most prominent citizens of Oregon:

MIRACULOUS CURE.

Dr. Henley—Dear Sir: I feel it but a duty to inform you and the public what a miraculous effect your Royal Balsam had on my wife. She had been affected with a severe cough for several weeks, which had assumed a dangerous feature, for which many physicians have been trying without any material benefit, and all the remedies failed to give her any relief. Without relief was got I feared for the worst, in her present condition. The cough appeared to be worse at night, she could get no rest when Mr. Randall, of this place, advised me to try your Royal Balsam, all other remedies having failed, I concluded to try it, and I purchased two bottles. Strange to say, by the time I gave her three spoonfuls of the Balsam she got relief, and slept, a thing she had not done for three nights previous. By the time she had taken one bottle the cough was checked. Its effect was truly miraculous, as the cure was effectual; hence, I have no hesitation in recommending the Royal Balsam to all who are afflicted, and it appears astonishing to me that medicine of such great merit, and I might say magical effect, is not more in use. My candid opinion is, if persons use it once, they never be without it in the house.
Vancouver, March 1, 1867. H. COCHRAN.

From Wm. Doty.

North Yamhill, July 15, 1867.

Dear Dr. Henley—It is with sincere gratitude I undertake to write to you, what your Royal Balsam has done for me. For the last 12 years I have been afflicted with a severe cough and what else some of the physicians called the Bronchitis, and have spent a fortune to get cured, trying all the physicians and remedies I could get to no purpose. Through the influence of my neighbors (for you have a great name with them here,) I got a bottle of your Royal Balsam, and finding that it relieved me considerable I sent for a half dozen more. And now after one month using it I am perfectly cured. I gained ten pounds within a month and feel quite a different man. I send you this for publication for the benefit of humanity, that through my experience others in affliction may be relieved as I have been. Yours truly,
WILLIAM DOTY.

From Sophia M. Holman.

Dear Dr. Henley—It is my duty to inform you and the public, what a miraculous effect your Royal Balsam had on my children. Two of them had a very bad cough and cold, I got a bottle of the Royal Balsam, and gave them some at bedtime and some in the morning, and that was all that was needed to cure them. I was astonished at not hearing them cough again, but so it was. I find if you give it in larger doses it will make the children throw up in an instant, and I think every mother ought to have a bottle of your Royal Balsam in the house, in case a child should get the croup for which it is a sure remedy, as it acts like magic on children. What I have seen and heard from my neighbors about the Royal Balsam I would sooner depend on it than on any prescription from any physician. I have lost two children within the last year of the same disease, had I had at the time some of the Royal Balsam I am confident my dear ones would be alive now. I shall always recommend it to all my friends, for I consider it a blessing and Godsend to mankind.
Yours truly, SOPHIA M. HOLMAN.

From Drs. Bell & Parker.

We have sold a great deal of Medicine since we have been in business, and now have fifteen different kinds of Expectorants for sale. But Dr Henley's Royal Balsam takes the palm from all. In fact, we sell six bottles of Royal Balsam to one of any other kind—and really it seems of no use to keep any other. During our experience we have never seen any medicine that gives the satisfaction the Royal Balsam does, as is proven by the results daily coming in from the country of old Chronic cases, when nothing else would remove the dreadful cough they had. I find it is good for Bronchitis and Asthma. We acknowledge it is a pleasure to sell medicine that gives such universal satisfaction.
BELL & PARKER,
Druggists, Oregon City.

From W. F. Barber.

Dr. Henley—Dear Sir: I had the Asthma for the last four years, so bad that it came near choking me. I tried all the patent medicines recommended for the cure of Asthma without doing me the least good, till I was told to try some of your Royal Balsam, which on several afflicted with the same disease, has performed wonders. I am using it now for a week and strange to say I have not experienced anything since, and I really believe that I am perfectly cured, anyhow I shall never be without a bottle of the Royal Balsam in the house in case of a similar attack, and I have no hesitation in recommending it to all afflicted with the same disease.
I am Yours truly,
W. F. BARBER.

From J. H. Morril.

Dear Dr. Henley—I think it but justice to you that these few lines should be made known to the public, for there is so much humbug going on in patent medicines and quack nostrums now-a days that I had lost all faith in everything in the shape of medicine. I was affected with what is called Bronchitis for the last thirty years, I coughed and wheezed for an hour at a time; I tried some of the best physicians in the Atlantic States and on this coast, all to no purpose. I could get no relief, and I really thought there was no relief for me in the world. I was induced to try a bottle of your Royal Balsam and it had a most remarkable effect on me, and before I had used up four bottles, the cough left me and I can talk as loud as anybody; my wife and neighbors don't know what to make of it. My opinion is that if they knew the value of the Royal Balsam there is not a family in the country that would be without it, I think there is not a better medicine in existence for Bronchitis or cough than the Royal Balsam, and I conscientiously recommend to all so afflicted to give it a fair trial.
I remain yours, truly,
J. H. MORRIL.

Medical.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW [illegible]
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a [illegible] ence from the effects of secret indulgence, or [illegible] absorbed into the system! Look at their [illegible] ted and disfigured faces and their broken [illegible] tions, disqualifying them for the happiness of or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid [illegible] sands suffer until death closes the scene. [illegible] guardians, friends, attend to those who are [illegible] any of these horrible life-destroying maladies [illegible] they are cared for and cured before it be too late. [illegible] them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician [illegible] made private disease his specialty for years, and [illegible] is certain to cure the most inveterate cases [illegible] cury or any injurious drugs. It is important to [illegible] who are afflicted, or to those who are interested [illegible] welfare of their friends, to be careful of the [illegible] tended doctors who infest all cities, publicly [illegible] in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing [illegible] public by using the names of eminent ph[illegible] Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and [illegible] strict inquiry, or you may fall into the [illegible] charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse, solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is [illegible] by the youth of both sexes to an almost [illegible] producing, with unerring certainty, the following of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by [illegible] ical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark [illegible] the eyes, pain in the head, ranging in the ears, [illegible] the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, [illegible] about the loins, weakness of the limbs, [illegible] blunted intellect, loss of confidence, [illegible] proaching strangers, a dislike to form new [illegible] a disposition to shun society, loss of [illegible] flushes, pimples and various eruptions about [illegible] furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, [illegible] sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. [illegible] not obtained, should apply immediately, [illegible] or by letter, and have a cure effected by his [illegible] entific mode of treating this disease, which [illegible] ding a quick and radical cure. Dr G. will [illegible] Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove [illegible] rily to him that he was cured of this com[illegible] of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are under any of these fearful maladies, should not [illegible] sacred responsibility resting upon them [illegible] obtain immediate relief.

TO THE LADIES.

The various complicated and distressing [illegible] dent to females; treated with eminent [illegible] Suppressions, Irregularities, Whites, [illegible] Womb, Tumors, all Urinary Diseases, Ner[illegible] Painful or Difficult Menstruation, Barren[illegible] be speedily cured, without poisonous drugs [illegible] unpalatable medicines of any kind. Have [illegible] in calling, no difference what your [illegible] afflicted are cordially invited to call and [illegible] selves.

Persons calling at Dr. Gibbon's office or [illegible] packages of medicines, may rely upon his [illegible] confidential secrecy with implicit faith, and [illegible] more than to be charged with a fair, and [illegible] factory remuneration for services rendered, [illegible] the circumstances and difficulties of [illegible] too prevalent and selfish practice of [illegible] quacks and pretenders.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give [illegible] patient a written instrument, binding [illegible] radical and permanent cure, or make no [illegible]

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be cured [illegible] by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, [illegible] tems, length of time the disease has con[illegible] medicines promptly forwarded, free from curiosity, to any part of the country, with directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in [illegible] fee or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
